Dr Don Sinclair

Public Health Consultant - Public Health England

Don Sinclair qualified in medicine in 1986 and specialised in public health. He was Director of Public Health for Slough and Berkshire East, where he had a particular interest in reducing the impact of diabetes and heart disease, and in helping local communities to improve their own health.

Don has joined the South East Public Health Observatory and became part of Public Health England. He is particularly interested in providing information to help local authorities and partners take action to improve the health of their populations
